

Where every image on this website came from

A complete record of the photographs, brand marks, typefaces and artwork used on the Mobile World Hawera website – what each one is, where it was obtained, and the licence that permits its use. Compiled so that any query about rights can be answered from a single page.

01 The short answer

If someone queries an image, this paragraph is the reply.

Every photograph on this website is a free stock image from Pexels, used under the Pexels Licence, which grants free commercial use with no attribution required and no fee. The Pexels photo ID and source URL for each image are listed in section 3 and can be checked by anyone in a few seconds.

The six brand logos come from Simple Icons, released into the public domain under CC0 1.0. The typefaces are released under the SIL Open Font Licence 1.1. The Mobile World Hawera logo is the business's own property.

No image was taken from a manufacturer, a competitor, or a search engine.

Reproduced word for word from pexels.com/license (<https://www.pexels.com/license/>) as it stood on the compile date. The date is recorded because a licence granted at the time of download is not withdrawn by a later change of terms – but being able to show the terms as they were makes that simple to demonstrate.

WHAT THE LICENCE PERMITS

“All photos and videos on Pexels are free to use.”

“Attribution is not required. Giving credit to the photographer or Pexels is not necessary but always appreciated.”

“You can modify the photos and videos from Pexels. Be creative and edit them as you like.”

WHAT IT PROHIBITS – AND HOW THIS SITE COMPLIES

RESTRICTION, VERBATIM	COMPLIANCE
Identifiable people may not appear in a bad light or in a way that is offensive.	Five images show people or hands – a technician at a bench (×2), a hand using a screwdriver, fingers with tweezers, and a person holding a phone. All are ordinary working or everyday-use contexts. None is unflattering, and no caption reflects on the person.
Don't sell unaltered copies of a photo or video, e.g. as a poster, print or on a physical product without modifying it first.	Nothing is sold. Every image was cropped, resized and re-encoded to AVIF and WebP for web delivery. No original file is offered for download.
Don't imply endorsement of your product by people or brands on the imagery.	No image is presented as an endorsement. The people shown are not named or described as staff, customers or endorsers.
Don't redistribute or sell the photos and videos on other stock photo or wallpaper platforms.	Not redistributed. The images appear only as part of this website's page design.
Don't use the photos or videos as part of your trade-mark, design-mark, trade-name, business name or service mark.	No Pexels image forms any part of the Mobile World Hawera logo or name. The logo is the business's own artwork – see section 6.

03 The 17 photographs

Each was downloaded from Pexels and re-encoded for the web. Every one ships at two or three widths in two formats, which is why 17 photographs account for 70 image files.

Every source URL was requested and returned HTTP 200 on 18 September 2026 – the tick column records that check, not a claim about the licence.

The same list is kept beside the images themselves in `public/images/CREDITS.md`, so the record travels with the site files.

04 The six brand logos

Apple, Samsung, Huawei, Oppo, Vivo and Google appear in the “Brands we repair” row. Two separate things apply here, and they are worth keeping apart.

THE ICON FILES – PUBLIC DOMAIN

The six shapes come from Simple Icons (<https://simpleicons.org>), package `simple-icons` version `13.21.0`, released under CC0 1.0 Universal – a public domain dedication. Confirmed from the package manifest on the compile date. There is therefore no copyright question over the files.

THE TRADEMARKS – NOT OWNED, AND NOT CLAIMED

The marks remain the property of Apple Inc., Samsung, Huawei, Oppo, Vivo and Google. This website claims no ownership of them and does not need to: they identify which devices the shop repairs, which is ordinary descriptive use of the kind every independent repair business relies on.

Two design decisions support that position:

- A disclaimer sits directly beneath the logo row, in the page's own words: “Brand names and logos are shown only to help you identify your device. Mobile World Hawera is an independent repair store and is not an authorised service centre for, or affiliated with, any of these manufacturers.”
- The logos are drawn in a single flat colour rather than each brand's official colours, which keeps clear of manufacturer brand style guidelines.

If a manufacturer ever objects, removing one takes a single edit in `public/index.html`: delete both copies of that brand – the visible one and its `data-mq-clone` twin, which exists only so the row scrolls seamlessly.

05 Typefaces

TYPEFACE	USED FOR	LICENCE
Archivo	Headings, buttons, labels	SIL Open Font Licence 1.1
Inter	Body text	SIL Open Font Licence 1.1

Both licences permit commercial use, embedding and self-hosting without fee. The font files are served from the site's own server rather than from Google, so no visitor data is passed to a third party.

06 The Mobile World Hawera logo

This is the business's own property, supplied by the client as `logo.png` and kept in the project root as the original source file.

It was traced to vector format so it stays sharp at any size, including print. No colour was altered. The charcoal “M” and “MOBILE”, the red “W” and “WORLD”, and the grey “Hawera” are exactly as supplied, and the counters – the enclosed holes in O, B, R, D, a and e – are properly transparent, so the mark sits correctly on any background. No reversed or recoloured version is used anywhere on the site.

The 26 interface icons – phone, WhatsApp, map pin, envelope, clock, battery, droplet, speaker, signal, tablet, laptop and the rest – were drawn specifically for this website and carry no third-party rights.

The Pexels Licence covers copyright. It does not cover a trademark that appears inside a photograph, which is a separate matter. Every candidate image was therefore opened and examined at full resolution before use, and anything showing a manufacturer's name or logo was rejected.

REJECTED	REASON
JBL portable speaker	JBL wordmark on the grille
Bose speaker	BOSE wordmark across the front
Marshall speakers (×2)	Marshall script logo
Sony speaker	SONY wordmark
MIVI speaker	MIVI wordmark
AirPods and earbuds (several)	Distinctive Apple product design and logo
Phone cases (several)	Apple logo visible on the cases
Phone home screens (several)	Chrome, WhatsApp, Facebook, Instagram, Play Store icons
A battery repair photo	A laptop full of visible app icons had crept into the frame

Also excluded as a matter of policy:

- No manufacturer's own product photography
- No image taken from any other repair business, including the reference site
- No image sourced from a search engine or an unidentified website

The Bluetooth speaker that was used – photo 13465232 – was checked at full resolution specifically to confirm it carries no wordmark, only an embossed volume control.

08 Verifying any of this

Anyone can check a photograph in well under a minute:

- 1 Take any Photo ID from the table in section 3.
- 2 Open `https://www.pexels.com/photo/<ID>/` in a browser.
- 3 The page shows the photograph and the words “Free to use”.
- 4 The full terms are linked from every Pexels page at pexels.com/license (<https://www.pexels.com/license/>).

For the brand logos, check the licence stated in the footer at simpleicons.org (<https://simpleicons.org/>), or read the package manifest directly at cdn.jsdelivr.net/npm/simple-icons@13/package.json (<https://cdn.jsdelivr.net/npm/simple-icons@13/package.json>) – the `license` field reads `CC0-1.0`.

09 If a claim is ever received

- 1 Do not remove anything immediately. Check the claim against this record first – a claim is not proof.
- 2 Identify which image is being claimed, and find its row in section 3.
- 3 Reply with the Photo ID and the Pexels source URL, plus a link to the licence. In most cases that ends the matter, because the claimant is looking at a photograph they also found on a free stock site.
- 4 If the claim concerns a brand logo rather than a photograph, point to section 4 and to the disclaimer already published beneath the logo row.
- 5 If the claim is formal – a letter from a lawyer or a rights-management agency – take this document to a solicitor before responding or paying anything. Speculative invoicing over stock images is common.
- 6 Keep this record current. If an image is ever swapped, add its replacement to section 3 with the new Photo ID and source URL.

Read this before relying on the document.

This record covers only the material on the website as at 18 September 2026. Anything added later must be recorded here too.

Licence terms can change. The Pexels terms in section 2 are quoted as they stood on that date, which is why the date is recorded throughout.

If you replace any stock photo with your own photograph of the shop, note it here as your own work. That is the strongest position of all, and it is recommended for the shopfront image in particular.

This is a factual record of what was used and where it came from, compiled by the site's developer. It is not a legal opinion and does not constitute legal advice.
